

Eleni Antonopoulou

Short C.V.

Eleni Antonopoulou is a graduate of the School of Geology of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. She received her M.Sc. degree from the University of Wales, Aberystwyth on Environmental Impact Assessment. She also holds a postgraduate degree on Environmental Protection and Sustainable Development and a Ph.D. on Environmental Economics, both from the School of Civil Engineering of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki.

She has worked on various administrative positions, as well as research projects at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and the private sector, and has presented papers in international conferences. Since 2014 she is working as laboratory teaching staff at the School of Social Theology and Christian Culture of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, in the field of "Theology, Natural Sciences and the Environment".

Her research interests include natural resources management, environmental ethics, sustainable development, and the role that religions in general and sacred natural sites in particular play, on both a spiritual and a practical level, in achieving sustainability.